

Proc and Cons of On-line Education

Nowadays information in every sphere of knowledge is changing so fast that a ten year – old diploma can not be a guarantee of high qualification. Moreover in the world of ever-changing market, many specialists have to refresh and sometimes even to obtain closely- related and at times quite new qualifications. The perspective of turning into a constant student and combine work, family and university does not attract most of us. It is far better to improve the qualification staying at home. On–line education gives us such an opportunity. Besides it is cheaper than full time education. On–line education attempts to keep all the forms of the traditional education. And its main advantage is convenience. But let's go deeper into the matter and see if it is really worth it.

On –line system treats the student with more respect, giving him freedom of searching information in the available literature sources.

Tests are sent out by e-mail and you communicate with your tutor in the form of the conference. Many preoccupied businessmen and people who are interested in acquiring foreign education have already appreciated these advantages of on – line learning. They don't have to leave home, work and can save up on paying for the education.

To become an on- line student you should first of all find the educational establishments providing courses of the necessary qualification. As the internet is stocked up with various offers of such kind, be critical when comparing the programs of different universities and choose the one that best suits your intentions and ambitions.

Admission to the selected course is easy – you should fill in the application form and the most important - pay for the term. Then the student gets all the necessary educational provision on his e – mail or a password to the necessary literature database. At the appointed time he communicates virtually with his tutor – it takes form of a traditional seminar. All the written tasks (e.g humanities essay) are submitted in electronic form on the fixed date. Though the essence studying humanities online is quite of a doubtful result. It is easier for such students to turn to a company providing humanities essay writing service and get the humanities essay online, than to sit and waist time on written assignments.

“Humanities” is hardly a science that can be studied online: studies require direct contact with the tutor. Online students are most likely to sit back and wait till their order is completed than to dedicate some time to humanities essay writing and highlighting main ideas of humanities essay topic. Of course it is more difficult to determine if the work has been done by the student or by someone else. The same refers to the exams. Though they are conducted with a number of restrictions - but students are so inventive, especially on line students. Instead of trivial cheating they set someone more intelligent at the computer or manage to find answers to most complicated questions with the help of Internet. Much fewer people fail on – line exams. Surely it does not contribute to a good reputation of an on- line diploma.

Another disadvantage of the virtual communication is its impersonal character. Sending out a brilliant classification essay the student may get a stingy grade with no comments. No matter how literary your division classification essay was or how well classification division essay topic was highlighted, you may still get a “Satisfactory”. No matter how much time you devoted to this classification essay writing, your written assignment still may not be assessed duly and an online student has to be ready for this. There are a lot of methods to write on classification essay topic but will the effort be appreciated? There is no guarantee that the essay has been carefully checked by the tutor. Impersonality of the process results in hack-work from both sides.

Besides personal communication with an interesting teacher enriches the educational process and makes it exciting and absorbing. For particular disciplines, (e.g. Humanities) it is the only best form of learning.

That is why before investing your time, money and effort in on- line education – think: will your attempts be appreciated? Though it is better to have an extra Diploma and Degree than not to.